

STORM SWEEP OVER VERY LARGE AREA

WIND, RAIN AND HAIL INFLICT SERIOUS DAMAGE TO GROW-ING CROPS.

PROPERTY LOSS HEAVY

Storm Almost of Tornado Velocity
Reported in Many Parts of the Immediate Vicinity.

Southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois were visited by a near tornado Tuesday afternoon which in some localities caused a heavy property loss and in other Illinois cities the loss of several lives. Rain fell in torrents, hail, to a considerable amount, visited various tracts of the district, breaking windows and riving grain, while the wind in roofed houses and barns, tore down tobacco sheds and demolished silos throughout the country sections.

Storm at Rockford.
Elgin and Rockford, Illinois, suffered the worst effects of the storm and in both cities the property loss is very severe. In Rockford the property loss is estimated at several hundred thousand dollars. Scores of houses and barns were blown down and many streets are impassable from the hundreds of big trees blown down.

Great damage was done to crops. The city was in darkness owing to damage to the lighting plant. Three women were badly hurt when the foundations of the little house in which they were housed collapsed. The women had been taken refuge in the cellar of the house and were nearly buried in the falling bricks.

They were:
Mrs. Bertha Colby, collarbone and leg broken.
Mrs. Martha Duquette, badly bruised.
Gertrude Cravers, legs broken.

Report that the excursion steamship Illinois was blown in a river with a large loss of life was not true. The captain of the steamer saw the storm coming and anchored along shore until the wind subsided. The passengers were among the serious sufferers from the wind. The steeples of the First Baptist church and the Zion Lutheran church were blown down. The old baseball park was demolished and the ground filled with water.

Many small launches tied in the river were torn from their moorings and washed over the dam.

In Elgin.
At Elgin three men were reported killed and property damage to the amount of $100,000. Four stores were unroofed by the wind, the steeple of the First Baptist church was blown down and much damage was done to telegraph and telephone wires.

Arthur Peterson, 18 years old, son of John Peterson, a wealthy farmer four miles west of here, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. Three men were reported killed at Pingree Grove, where the barn in which they were seeking shelter, collapsed.

One of the horses which Peterson was driving was killed by the bolt which caused his death, while the other was uninjured. This city was in darkness Tuesday night because of the damage to the electric light plant.

The roof of the Lynch block, occupied by four stores, was blown 10 feet into the railroad yards.

Reports from Dundee and Sycamore nearby villages, say both were badly damaged by the wind.

At Aurora, Illinois, several lives were lost, houses set on fire, cattle were left in darkness and hundreds of farm buildings were flattened by the tail and the storm swept across this section of the country yesterday. News of the havoc left in the wake of the storm began to creep into Aurora Tuesday over crippled telephone wires.

The dead.
David B. Frazier, traveling sales man from Geneva, touched a live power wire blown over a house.

Richard Wallenberg, a farmer killed at Bristow when a wagon blew over on him.

The injured are: Percy Ream, 2 years old, St. Charles, skull fractured by flying tree, will die; the man killed from Geneva, badly burned upon the hands and arms in attempting to rescue her husband.

Andrew Nelson of Batavia, was internally injured and buried under the roof of a house which blew through the air.

The city of Batavia was in darkness last night and only part of the city was working in Geneva and St. Charles. Street car service was crippled in Elgin today and the city was practically cut off from the world with telephone wires down. One man was killed at Batavia during the storm and $100,000 damage done to buildings.

The storm unroofed several Aurora houses and stopped street cars for a short time, but the damage here is not over $10,000. The loss in the surrounding country is not at $125,000 as many head of stock were lost in falling barns.

Throughout Rock county the reports show serious losses. Between Janesville and Beloit the hail fell in streaks. Windows were broken and the rice crops in many localities all now ruined. On the Michael McCar farm a large silo was destroyed and the same was true of the James Finley and the Laurence Finley places. Trees were torn up by the roots and buildings unroofed.

A tobacco shed belonging to M. J. Plumb was blown over and much of his machinery and several horses were wrecked. Considerable damage was done.

The farm house belonging to D. Simpson, a short distance from the Plumb farm, had several windows broken as the result of the hail which blew with considerable force in the country. The hail broke all the windows and the furniture was slightly damaged.

The third farm belonging to H. M. Harstad, suffered a slight crop loss while the house had twenty windows completely broken.

North of Janesville on the Madison road, a tobacco shed belonging to the Henry Wilford farm was wrecked. The building was forty by one hundred feet, and it was carried by the Continued on Page 5

MILLIONAIRES' SONS ATTACKED BY THUGS

Young Men's First Attempt at Bumming Results in Their Being Robbed and Badly Abused.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Milwaukee, July 9.—Choked and beaten into insensibility and bruised with a sling-shot, robbed and thrown from a fast moving freight train from the Northwestern road early today, was the experience of two young men who claimed to be sons of Chicago millionaire families.

Jack Ledy, 21 years old, of 2516 North Cambridge avenue, who claims to be the son of a retired real estate broker, and Stanley Plischke, 20 years old, of 2418 North Artesian street, who says he is the son of a retired contractor, both of Chicago, are the victims of the alleged assault.

According to the young men they boarded the freight train at Mayfair near Chicago, and intended to "bum" their way to Antigo, Wis., where Ledy says he has an aunt. Just before the train reached New Butler, near here, two men attacked the Chicagoans, beat them and robbed them of nearly $100, then hurled them from the train into the ditch, where both were rendered unconscious. The police today arrested two brothers, John Doan, 24 years old, and Max R. Whitney, 25 years old, and charged them with the assault.

WILL GIVE DECISION IN MILWAUKEE CASE

United States Supreme Court Called Upon to Take Action in Street Car Rate Litigation.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 9.—The United States supreme court has been called upon to give a decision in the Milwaukee street car fare cases. A writ of error has just been sent out of the state supreme court to the United States supreme court. The documents in the case give thirteen specified errors as having been made by the district and supreme court in deciding the case and claims that all of those errors are in violation of the constitution of the United States. Under ordinary circumstances the case would not be given a hearing in the federal court before early next year. In addition the street car company offers to give an additional bond of $25,000 and continue to give coupons that are to be redeemable in case the railroad commission's order is sustained.

The decision of the supreme court in the case is epochal. It held that if the legislature had not delegated the police power to cities to make rates of fare in franchises, the principal as laid down was so broad as to practically repeal a number of the franchises in the state fixing a higher rate of fare than could be sustained before the railroad commission.

In the assignment of errors the law firm of Miller, Mack and Fairchild claim that the court erred in not holding that the railroad commission violated a contract in not holding decision on the railroad commission law void in so far as it was given power to alter contracts and it claims that the decision of the commission takes the property of the company without due process of law.

Judge Winslow has signed the order permitting the appeal and the papers in the case have just been served upon the railroad commission. The federal court is asked to reverse the state's supreme court in holding the railroad commission law and the order of the commission valid.

BASEBALL PITCHER MAKES A DEEP DIVE

Into Lake and Rescues Body of Drowned Youth—Waddell's 'Lat. est Bid for Fame.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Powers, Minn., July 9.—The body of Emmett Gary, 22 years old, who drowned in Lake Vermilion, was recovered last night by "Rube" Waddell of base ball fame.

"Rube" is camping on Lake Vermilion and learning that the attempts to secure the body were failing, went over to the water front. "What's the matter here? Can't anyone get this body?" asked "Rube".

"He was told that the best swimmers located to go thirty feet after the body."

"I used to be some swimmer myself," said the famous left hander, and stripping he dove thirty feet and brought the body up.

FOUND MISSING MAN DEAD IN THE RIVER

His Companion Is Now Being Held Pending Inquiry Into Death of Friend.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Cloquet, Minn., July 9.—The body of Gus Suomies, who it is thought was murdered, was found in the St. Louis river last night. The body was held as a suspect in the Cloquet county jail. Suomies had been missing since July 4. He was last seen in company with Peto, who knocked him through a window in a fight. Then Suomies and Peto disappeared and the body was found. The victim was 20 years old. Coroner Raifer will empanel the jury to day to fix the blame.

AMERICAN ENGINEERS CONCLUDE THEIR TOUR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Berlin, July 9.—Expressing themselves well satisfied with the results of their month's tour of industrial Germany and more than satisfied with the warm cordiality with which they have been received everywhere, the members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, who arrived at Hamburg on June 10, concluded their tour today at Munich. While the official itinerary of the trip is ended many of the American visitors still remain on the continent for some time longer. Others are planning to sail for New York at the end of the week.

RESERVOIR MEASURE PASSAGE IS ASSURED

Senate Refuses to Reconsider Vote Ordering Battis Bill to Third Reading—Teasdale Bill Engrossed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 9.—After turning down every amendment offered, the senate yesterday afternoon upon a roll call refused to reconsider its vote in ordering the Battis bill for reservoirs on the Wisconsin river reading. The debate consumed most of the day. The senate refused to suspend the rules and place it on its immediate passage, and the bill will come up for final action Tuesday, with every indication of concurrence. In its present form the bill does not demand any cash return to the state for the franchise, nor does it incorporate a proposed amendment providing for a revocable franchise.

The senate engrossed the Teasdale bill making owners of billiard and pool rooms and bowling alleys liable to a fine of $25 for allowing minors to play on the premises and their places, and making such minors under sixteen years of age liable to a fine of $10. As amended the bill makes consent of parents or guardian and state foster care, may play or linger around such amusement places. Senator Kleen opposed the bill, declaring the amendments named were wholesome and tended to elevate the standards of boys. Teasdale disagreed.

The Stevens bill relating to taxation of lands in the forest reserve was engrossed without opposition. It provides that the state tax commission and state forester shall assess the lands and their valuation, be placed on the tax rolls and taxes collected for all except state purposes. An appropriation of $150,000 for three years is provided for the purpose of carrying out the bill. The bill was engrossed.

The Randolph bill providing for a general revision of the lobby law, having been introduced by the lobbyists and requiring registration and the Tompkins bill forbidding treating by lobbyists to influence legislation were engrossed at the afternoon session with no opposition.

The Stevens bill prohibiting the purchase of additional forest reserve lands until July 1, 1915, and appointing a special committee to investigate the forest reserve was tabled on motion of Senator Scott. It is desired to await the outcome of the Whitelaw bill to the same end. A bill by Senator Glenn changing the distribution of common school fund was laid upon Glenn's own recommendation.

STRIKERS CUT CABLE CRIPPLING PHONES

Telephone Communications From St. Louis Cut Off by Strikers Who Say Off Important Cable.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

St. Louis, July 9.—The cutting of a telephone cable, belonging to the Southern Telegraph and Telephone Company (Bell) and connecting St. Louis and St. Louis, today put out of commission 34 of the 90 trunk lines of the Bell company between St. Louis and East St. Louis. The interference cut off from Bell communication with St. Louis and the tri-city of the Illinois side. Yet, Madison and Granite City. The cable that was cut contained 240 wires. It was sawed at a point where it entered a conduit after leaving the East bridge on the river. The Bell exchange in Granite City, Madison and Venice have just been reopened after having been closed for several days as a result of interference supposedly on the part of sympathizers with the strikers and linemen.

Several men were arrested for investigation in connection with the affair. They are members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and had been assigned to picket duty in the downtown telephone exchange in St. Louis.

STILL SEARCHING FOR GIRL'S BODY

Dynamite Fails to Bring up Body of La Crosse Girl Who Drowned Yesterday—Strikers Grief.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

La Crosse, July 9.—The body of Myrtle Eilers, who with Elizabeth Haebich and William Zenker drowned here in the Mississippi river on the evening of July 7, has not been recovered. Efforts to bring it to the surface by exploding dynamite on the river bed failed yesterday afternoon.

Moed parents are overcome with grief. W. R. Eilers, father of the girl, has personally superintended daily efforts to locate the body and is nearly a nervous wreck.

The bodies of the two victims which were located after using dynamite are being held so that the body of the Essex girl is found today. A large reward has been offered for the body. Merton Klue, the sole survivor of the drowning experience is ill at his home, having broken down because of the nervous strain.

LA CROSSE TO TAKE THE ST. PAUL FRANCHISE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

La Crosse, July 9.—Indications last night were that the franchise of the St. Paul club of the Northern league would be transferred to La Crosse for the remainder of the playing season. C. T. Kelley, business manager of the club and President J. A. Zitt, of the local baseball association, spent the evening interviewing business men and announced that the prospect of the franchise had been favorably received. The reason for the desired change is the lack of support on the part of St. Paul baseball fans.

MAY INDICT LEADERS OF INDUSTRIAL WORKERS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Salom, Mass., July 9.—The troubles growing out of the Ipswich hostility mill strike are to be investigated by the Essex grand jury which convened here today. It is rumored that indictments may be returned against several officers and other leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World on charges of inciting the riots early in time in which a woman was shot and killed.

CONDEMNED ACTIONS IN DRASTIC REPORT

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION ON NEW ENGLAND RAILROAD CASE.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Ownership of Trolley Lines and Combination With Other Lines Are in Restraint of Trade.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., July 9.—Financial operations from the New York, New Haven and Hartford railway its ownership of trolley lines and control of allied New England railways are condemned by the interstate commerce commission in the report of its investigation made public here today. The commission's conclusions are:

That the "outside" financial management has been "wasteful in the extreme" and that the New Haven confined itself to actual railroad activities under the same condition that prevailed in other respects "it could have paid a dividend of 8 per cent for the fiscal year 1912 and carried to surplus account $1,794,000 instead of showing a deficit of $930,000."

The New Haven's agreement with the Boston and Albany is "violative of the spirit of the interstate act and restraint of competition and subsequently cancelled."

"In our opinion," says the commission, "this line should be kept entirely free from New Haven control. That the New Haven should defend itself of its trolley lines not because the present ownership is in violation of law, but because such ownership might be used to prevent the building of competing lines in the future."

That the Boston and Maine merger with the New Haven if permitted to stand will result in "an almost exclusive monopoly of transportation facilities by railroads in the greater part of New England."

Thus passenger train service without considering safety of operation on the New Haven is distinctly better than any other line entering New York and that the Boston and Maine is equally as good. Both roads however are criticized adversely for lack of steel cars.

That the freight service of the Boston and Maine "is much less desirable than that of either the Pennsylvania or the Erie and Ohio, while that of the New Haven is slightly inferior to the Pennsylvania, but about on a par with the Baltimore and Ohio."

That passenger fares in New England have been more favorable to the traveling public than in any other portion of the United States.

That any betterment of railroad condition in New England must begin with the assurance that the New Haven management will act not only prudently but also within the letter and the spirit of the interstate act.

No order was made by the commission, but in its opinion the following propositions which have national application to all railroads lie at the foundation of adequate railroad regulation:

"Every interstate railroad should be prohibited from expending money for incurring liabilities or acquiring property not in the operation of its railroad in the legitimate improvement, extension or development of that railroad."

"No interstate railroad should be permitted to lease or purchase any other railroad nor to acquire the stock or securities of any other railroad nor to guarantee the same directly or indirectly without the approval of the federal government."

BUREAU OF PUBLIC HEALTH WILL POPULARIZE BATHING

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Seattle, July 9.—"The bureau of public health and hygiene of New York is attempting," said John A. Kennedy, New York to the National Conference of Child Hygiene and Corrections today, "through advertising, etc., to popularize bathing. It is hoped that this will eventually be a positive health factor. In a certain sense it is outside in what is known as the slumy part of the city the bureau recently made a study of the bathing facilities in the tenement houses and learned that 89 per cent of the families had no bathing facilities and that 24 per cent were without laundry facilities."

Specialization.

A great deal is said in a disparaging way about the modern tendency toward specialization.

The time was when barbers were also doctors, when you could get a man who would pull your teeth, shave your head, and with equal willingness, when a woman, wanting the ruffles for her underskirt "pinked," would take time to the undertaker to be done.

There may have been a certain unique charm about such combinations of occupations, but the quality of the service rendered must have been somewhat uncertain.

Nowadays practically every man and woman in the productive business world, works along some certain well-defined line. The result of this specialization is shown in the immense advance there has been in the quality and variety of articles put into the market for general consumption.

The medium through which the public is informed of the best of these articles and their place of sale is the advertising columns of the reliable newspapers.

Local dealers should co-operate with and "hustle" for the newspaper advertisers who use local newspaper advertising to exploit the products they handle.

The Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York, solicits correspondence with dealers and manufacturers interested in newspaper advertising for nationally sold merchandise.

The United States and Canada will be represented by many delegates. Among the persons of wide prominence who will address the conference are Sir Henry James, Prof. Rudolph Eucken of the University of Jena, Sir Henry Jones of Glasgow University, Rabble Stephen S. Swiss of New York, Dr. David Starr Jordan of California, and Rev. Samuel A. Eliot of Boston.

FOREST LAND BILL DEBATED IN SENATE

Defeat Sought by Senator Tompkins Who Complained That It Would Result in Serious Delays.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, July 9.—When the senate adjourned at noon the Whiteside bill to prohibit the further acquisition of land for the state forest reserve before July 1, 1915, was under discussion.

Senator Tompkins asked for its defeat in order, he said, that another measure of a similar character permitting the purchase of land in certain areas might be passed in its stead.

He asserted that if the Whiteside bill should pass the state must idly wait for two years while an investigation of the forestry reserve should be made. Just before adjournment was taken Senator Hastings said he would speak at length on the bill this afternoon.

By a vote of 11 to 16 the senate refused to strike out of the anti-trust provision exempting co-operators. This provision was incorporated on motion of Senator Bossard at yesterday's session. With only the votes of Senators Biecher, Burke and Hastings in opposition, the senate passed the White bill for the sterilization of the feeble-minded, epileptic and insane.

Following an explanation by Senator Scott that the merger would save the state from $50,000 to $75,000 annually by saving a hearing given in the circuit court to determine if the temporary injunction should be granted. The express cases were originally started by the Merchants and Manufacturers Association of Milwaukee, but later the commission issued a general order against all companies operating in the state.

CONTESTS DECISION ON EXPRESS RATES

Companies Give Notice of an Appeal to Dane County Circuit Court—Declare Order Confiscatory.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 9.—Notice of an appeal to the Dane county circuit court to attempt to overturn the decision of the railroad commission in the express cases was served upon Attorney General Owen today. The notice asks for the setting aside of the order on grounds that the decision is confiscatory and temporary training order is asked for the railroad commission from putting the order into effect.

Two weeks ago the express companies asked for a further length of time to complete their tariffs under the new decision. It was then anticipated that there would be no contest. The first intimation that the express companies intended to fight the reduced rates came yesterday afternoon, when Attorney E. S. Mack of Milwaukee notified the attorney general's office that an agent of the firm would be in Madison Wednesday to file notice of an appeal. Computations made by experts indicate that the present decision of the railroad commission in these cases would save the public upwards of $100,000 annually.

Under the railroad commission decision the express order would go into effect July 15. Five days after the notice in serving a hearing given in the circuit court to determine if the temporary injunction should be granted. The express cases were originally started by the Merchants and Manufacturers Association of Milwaukee, but later the commission issued a general order against all companies operating in the state.

IMPORTANT MEASURES PASSED THE SENATE

Non-concurrence in Axel Johnson Bill — Mahon Minimum Wage Bill — Advanced to Third Reading. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 9.—Many measures of large importance were passed by the senate in a long evening session. Of political significance was the senate's action in non-concurrence, without debate, in the Axel Johnson bill, which would have allowed the Bull Moose party to gain a place on the ballot under its own name by the securing of a certain percentage of signatures. This was a republican pledge.

Among bills passed are: A. E. Martin—Providing that sale of groceries and meats in all cities shall not be considered works of necessity or charity.

Zophy—Appropriating $12,584.40 for paving of one-half of south side of Greenfield avenue abutting the state fair grounds, west of Allis, between 60th and 77th streets.

Bosshard—Providing that officers appointed by the governor by and with the consent of the senate, may be removed only by and with the consent of the senate, and that a copy of the charges must be filed with the officer.

Glenn—Appropriating $40,000 annually for three years for the state board of public affairs.

Finance committee—Appropriating not exceeding $20,000 for an investigation of the subject of insurance against accident, sickness and invalidity and the prevention of pauperism and dependency.

The Mahon bill, on the same subject was laid on the table to await the final outcome on the finance committee's bill.

The senate by a vote of 14 to 12 refused to kill the H. C. Martin bill providing for the appointment of a detective to watch the operations of lobbyists in the legislative halls, and passed the bill under suspension of the rules.

The Mahon minimum wage bill was advanced to third reading as were the Bingham bill compelling the licensing of all employment agencies, the Holmes bill for a tuberculosis camp in the forest reserve, the Peavey bill appropriating $40,000 annually for the state board of health and increasing the board's powers, and the bill appropriating about $2,500,000 for the state board of control and the institutions under its charge.

The senate killed the Weigle bill reducing the taxes of the Northwestern Mutual Life insurance company, and the Gudridge bill to tax all dogs.

Wonderful "Water Vine."

One of the wonders of the Guatemala jungle is the "water vine," a black, snakelike, leafless stem, dropping from the coiba and mahogany trees to which it has climbed. It is said to contain a quart of water to every foot. When the stem is cut the water spurts forth in a refreshing stream. Moisture is drawn up from the soil, and filtered through the pores of the plant.

Picked Up in Colorado.

Some years ago in a western mining town a man was found dead in his hotel room, hanged to a bedpost by his suspenders. The jury of miners brought in the following verdict at the coroner's inquest: "Deceased came to his death by coming home full and mistaking himself for his pants."

Before Going on a Tramp.

To prevent blistering of the feet, pad your toes with thin layers of absorbent cotton, if not hardened to steady walking. Do it very carefully and one will find it to be a great protection.

UNCLE SAM'S TINIEST OFFICE MAY CLOSE; POSTMISTRESS GROWS WEARY OF HER JOB

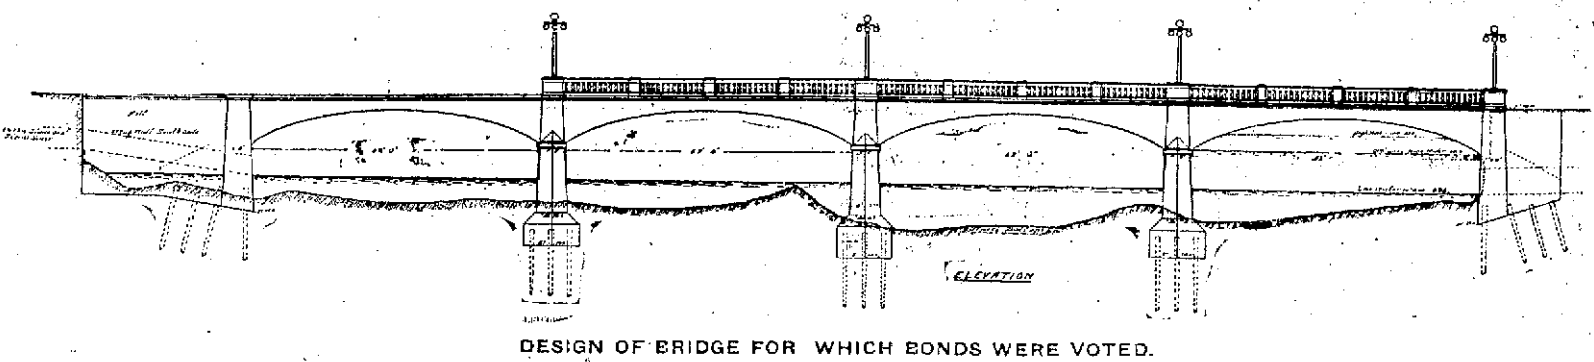

Mrs. Anderson and her postoffice home.

Uncle Sam's smallest postoffice may be abolished because the seventy-one-year-old postmistress, Mrs. Armstrong, insists on retiring. The little postoffice was established January 1, 1909, and is located at Wicklow, near Buckus, Cass county, Minn. It serves a community of just fourteen persons.

Mrs. Armstrong, despite her age, is still vigorous. She says, though, that keeping a postoffice interferes with her farm and garden duties.

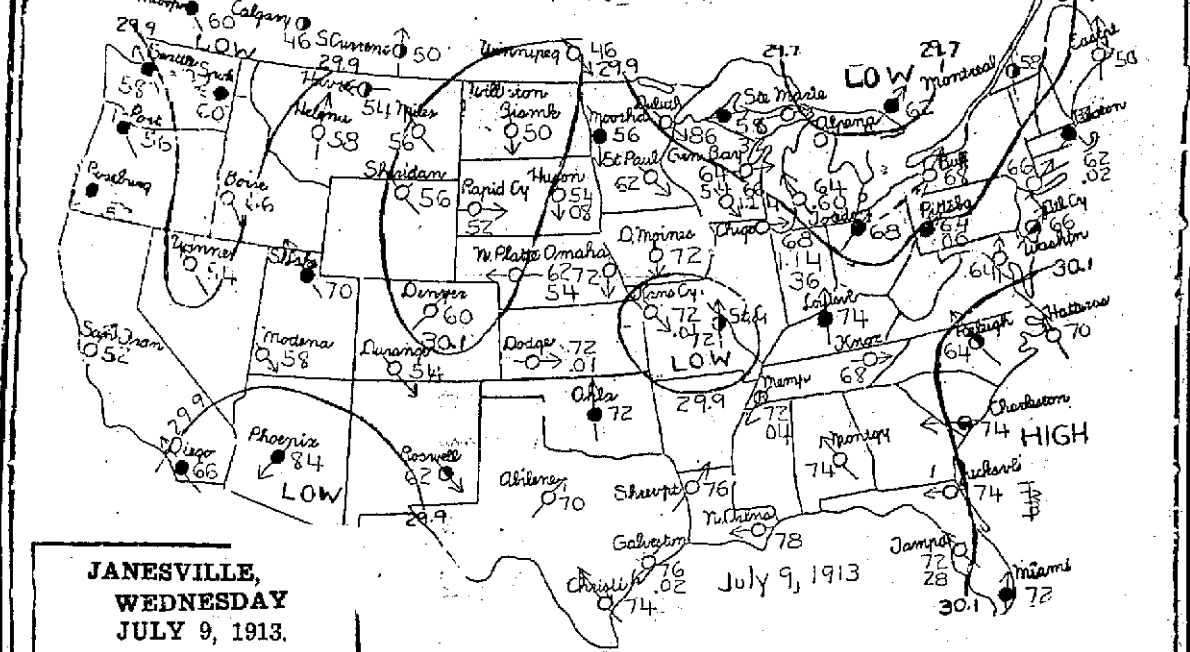

That women played a prominent part in the greatest battle of the Civil war—fought just fifty years ago—is apt to be forgotten until a mute reminder such as is seen in the photograph is brought to our attention. Fifty years back is a long way to remember, but here one of the soldiers of the Confederacy at the Gettysburg reunion is seen greeting one of the women nurses who served in the Civil war's decisive battle, whom he remembers from fifty years ago.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

Observations taken at 8 a. m., 75th meridian. Time. Air pressure reduced to sea level. Isotherms (dotted lines) pass through points of equal air pressure. Isotherms (dotted lines) pass through points of equal temperature. Isotherms drawn only for zero, freezing, 50°, and 100°. Clear; partly cloudy; cloudy; rain; snow; report missing. Arrows fly with the wind. First figures, lowest temperature past 12 hours; second, precipitation of .01 inch or more for past 24 hours; third, maximum wind velocity.

The barometric depression that was in the upper Mississippi Valley and Red River Valley yesterday has moved eastward, and is now in the upper St. Lawrence Valley. It was attended by showers and thunderstorms around Lake Michigan. The heaviest rainfall was in Southern Wisconsin, and Northern Illinois. Madison reporting 1.25 inches, and Chicago .06.

A similar disturbance is moving eastward through British Columbia, attended by cloudiness and light sprinkles. There have been light rains in the lower Mississippi Valley and around the Gulf of Mexico, but the weather is generally fair throughout the country today.

In this vicinity the weather will be fair and cooler tonight. Thursday will be fair. The winds will be from the west to northwest, becoming variable.

Some Devout Dogs.

The following notice appears in the Weybridge (England), parish magazine: "A request has been made to owners of dogs will endeavor to prevent their attendance at St. Michael's church. A collie, an Aberdeen, a fox terrier and some others have of late presented themselves, not knowing that they are not welcome visitors."

For Cuts, Burns and Bruises. In every home there should be a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, ready to apply in every case of burns, cuts, wounds or scalds. J. H. Polanco, Delvalle, Tex., R. ## SPORT Snap-Shots

HAS DUMMIES ALREADY. Jimmy Callahan, manager of the White Sox, will have his little play-act. A few days ago in St. Louis, Percy Skillen, a former Dartmouth pitcher of repute and at present in the sporting goods business, tried to sell Callahan a contrivance he had invented to help young pitchers develop control. The thing is a dummy ball player that stands at the plate bat in hand and offers the pitchers plenty of practice at putting them over without fear of beheading anyone or being rattled by the batter's remark. Callahan admitted that it looked like a good idea but he wouldn't buy. "What do I want with one of those when I've got three or four on my payroll now?" said he. "I'll use the dummies I already have for the purpose."

MURPHY SHOULD FRET. Old C. Webb Murphy, the Chicago Cubs' keeper has every reason to fret and fume-right now. Joe Tinker, the ex-cub and present manager of the Reds gave the Cubs an awful wallop recently, taking four games out of five. Murphans the Cuban led the swatting with a triple, double and single. Murphy would prefer to believe that Tinker and his crowd are jokes at our national pastime.

JAMES AND WHALING. Manager Stallings of the Braves points out that it's quite unusual for a battery, both pitcher and catcher to come from the same minor league team. Jump right into the big show with the same club and make good in style. And he has in mind Pitcher James and Catcher Bert Whaling of Boston, both youngsters from Seattle, who are doing a great work for the Braves this season. O'Toole and Kelly of Pittsburgh are not in their class, allows Stallings.

FULL DOG IN BOX SCORE. The fans of Fort Wayne don't very much care how it is done just so the home boys win the game. Terre Haute has protested a game played there a few days ago because when Goat Anderson, their manager, was chasing a fly, fans in the bleachers sicked a bull dog on him and Anderson was obliged to forget about the ball and climb a tree. The dog was entered in the box score with Fort Wayne and given one assist.

SINNISSIPPI GOLFERS PLAY BELQIT TODAY

Return Match With Line City Players Took Place This Afternoon At Sinissippi Grounds—Fifteen To Complete.

Fifteen golfers belonging to the Beloit Country Club journeyed to Janesville this afternoon to compete with fifteen members of the Sinissippi club on the local links. The local members were defeated at Beloit last week and they are out today for revenge. The course is reported in the best of condition for the matches, and the local players are confident of pulling away with a safe lead. Several changes in the list of local men has been made, together with the change of several on the Line City list. The Nassau system of counting will be used today as was used a week ago. Following are the matches as they were scheduled to take place. Al Schaller vs. Hiram Morgan; Orie Sutherland vs. R. B. Way; John Wilcox vs. Dr. E. B. Brown; Francis Grant vs. Phil Munkland; W. Whetock vs. S. Griffith; F. J. Baker vs. Dr. J. R. Young; E. C. Baumann vs. Ackley; George King vs. D. H. Foster; Burns Brewer vs. H. W. Merrill; Rev. Beaton vs. Rev. Evans; Dr. Evansworth vs. Fred Gardner; Charles Gage vs. Emerson Peet; Frank Schaller vs. B. T. Lyons; Frank Baines vs. Don Van Wart; H. H. Bliss vs. Roy Howell.

FIRST BUILDING OF PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION NOW FINISHED

This picture shows the service building—the first of the structures to be finished at the Panama-Pacific international exposition at San Francisco. Although of small size when compared with the huge exhibit palaces it is an imposing edifice. The building is the headquarters of the construction and architectural departments. All the main exhibit palaces—there will be fourteen—will be under construction within a few months and will be completed in July, 1914.

"Artificial Rain." The shallow draft passenger steamers built by an English shipbuilding concern for river service in the tropics are equipped with "artificial rain." Up through the awning forming the roof of the upper cabin project two water pipes, each of which is fitted with a spray head. These fountains throw sprays of water over the awning, and the rapid evaporation under the hot rays of the sun keeps the cabins cool.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

MORIARTY A THIEF! HE PILFERS BASES

Moriarty.

Moriarty, of the Detroit Tigers, is one of the best base stealers on his team and when he is on the bases the backstop of the opposing team is always worried. He can never tell when Moriarty is going to attempt a steal, for Detroit's third sacker never gives any sign of his intentions.

of the greatest pinch-hitters in the business, but when placed in the game as a regular he seems to lose his batting eye. The Carolina league race is so hot that the newspapers printing the league standing are likely to catch fire. Five of the six teams are hovering around the 500 mark. The Milwaukee team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league, known as the Mollies, has been transferred to Fond du Lac. As Milwaukee has an American association team the fans of the "famous city" couldn't see the Mollies. Shortstop "Rabbit" Maxxville of the Boston Braves continues to shine as one of the bright stars of the season. The "Rabbit" has so much pepper in his system that he is forced to play all over the infield and two-thirds of the outfield.

WITH THE BOXERS. One-Round Davis and Barney Williams are to clash in Buffalo on July 15. Al Pulzer has accepted an offer to box Georges Carpentier, the French champion, in Paris next fall. Under the Kiley law Montana receives 10 per cent of the receipts of all boxing shows that are pulled off in the state.

Con O'Kelly, a protégé of Tommy Ryan, defeated Gus Marthain, a French heavyweight, at Plymouth, England, a short time ago. Jim Coffey, the Irish heavyweight who did considerable boxing in New York and Philadelphia, has returned to his home in Roscommon, Ireland.

Fights Scheduled for Tonight. Jimmy Duffy vs. Joe Shugrue, 10 rounds, at Buffalo. Carl Morris vs. Marty Cutler, 15 rounds, at Clovis, N. M.

GREAT PLAYER ON THE BENCH TO STAY.

Larry Lajoie.

Larry Lajoie of the Cleveland Naps, the last and grandest of the old guard in baseball, has gone to the bench to stay. For eighteen years he has been one of the greatest stars of the diamond, but of late he has been slow on the paths and has weakened in his playing at second base.

TALLEST TWIRLER, BUT HE CAN'T HIT

Carl Weillman.

Carl Weillman, who pitches for the St. Louis American league team, is the tallest pitcher in baseball and stands about six feet six. He is one of the best pitchers on the team, having terrific speed. But he can't hit. His batting average is .118.

BASEBALL CHATTER. Senter Reiney, manager of the champion Clarksville team of the Kitty league, has resigned. The Buffalo team is first in club fielding and last in club batting in the International league. Twenty-two players in the National league and nineteen in the American league are batting for 300 or better. First Baseman Bradley, the former Red Sox performer, is holding down the initial sack for Joe Kelley's Toronto team. It is said that the Wheeling team, of the Interstate league, is to be transferred to Newark, Ohio, in the near future. Perry Lipe's Savannah team finished first with a percentage of .754 for the first half of the South Atlantic league season. McQuillan of Columbus, Cutting of Milwaukee and Morgan of Kansas City top the list of winning pitchers in the American association. Catcher Ray Schalk of the White Sox was chased from the field by an umpire the other day for the first time in his career in the big leagues. McCormick, of the Giants, is one

FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS

ALBERT PATSON TERHUNE

RED CLOUD.

A young Ogalalla chief of the Sioux nation dashed across the Dakota prairie, followed by a band of youthful braves who had chosen him as their leader. From the chief's shoulders waved a scarlet blanket. Some poetic onlooker, observing the foremost rider's fiery-colored shoulder covering, said:

"He looks like a flying red cloud."

The speech pleased the young chief. From that time he was known as Maq-petu-ta—"Red Cloud."

Red Cloud was born in 1813. He was of obscure birth; but by sheer genius for warfare and leadership soon made himself a sub-chief. His early wars were waged against the Pawnees, Crows and other tribes, who hated the fierce Sioux. Then, in 1848—already a noted warrior—he began a conflict with the white men that waged off and on for more than thirty years. During much of that period Red Cloud was practically the war lord of Nebraska, Dakota, Kansas and large parts of Iowa, Wyoming, Montana and Minnesota.

The War Lord of the West.

Pioneers began to invade his realm. Many of them were white men of the most daring, lawless sort, who did not scruple to cheat, rob or even kill any Indian who crossed their path. Red Cloud regarded these newcomers as a hostile tribe and treated them as such. The white men slaughtered the buffaloes and other game by the thousand, taught the Indians to drink and trampled on their ancient customs. Red Cloud and his braves retaliated by slaying some of these "undesirable citizens" and declaring death-war upon the rest.

The government rushed to the protection of its settlers. Red Cloud now found himself opposed to trained soldiers instead of lawless frontiersmen. But he fought on as fearlessly as ever against these greater odds.

A body of regulars were sent to garrison Fort Phil Kearny, in Wyoming. On December 22, 1866, Red Cloud with a band of Sioux attacked a foraging party from the fort. Captain Fetterman with one hundred soldiers was sent out to the party's rescue. Red Cloud's savages in a terrific battle killed Fetterman and every one of his hundred men.

Encouraged by this feat, Red Cloud next attacked a detachment of soldiers under Major Powell, who were crossing the prairie with a consignment of metal wagon bodies. Using these wagon bodies for a bullet-proof fortification, the troops defended themselves so gallantly that Red Cloud could make no headway against them. Again and again he led his warriors across the open ground in a wild charge against the wagon fort. And every time the soldiers' quick, unerring volleys emptied dozens of saddles and sent the Indians reeling back. Red Cloud lost more than 300 men in this fight before he would consent to withdraw out of reach of the deadly rain of bullets.

Some of the older Sioux chiefs wanted to yield to the government and to sign a peace treaty. Red Cloud was asked to join them. He replied furiously: "No! I want war!" The more valiant young warriors echoed his defiant shout. And war they had for years thereafter. Red Cloud kept the frontier ablaze with excitement. Among the famous soldiers who fought against him from time to time were Generals Miles, Sherman, Sheridan, Crook, Terry and Custer. More than once he proved too wily for the best of them. But one leader, he he ever so inspired, cannot with 6,000 savages defy a whole country forever. So, in course of time, Red Cloud and his braves were cooped up on a reservation. But again and again they broke out, committing fearful ravages among the settlements.

The 30-Year War's End.

When Sitting Bull, in 1876, in the campaign which cost Custer's life, went on the warpath Red Cloud prepared to join the renowned Medicine Man. But General Crook swooped down upon his band just as they were making ready to start, took away their ponies and made Red Cloud a prisoner. Later the government offered to pay $28,000 for these ponies and for other confiscated weapons if Red Cloud would sign a treaty.

This was in 1880. Red Cloud was sixty-two years old. His long, tireless years of warfare had resulted in the thinning out of his warrior band and the loss of thousands of miles of his territory. Whereas, the white men in the west were every year more numerous. He saw the bitter hopelessness of it all and consented to sign what he called a "peace paper." The old savage had been in two hundred pitched battles during his stormy career. Now—peniless, old, helpless—he laid down his weapons. Nor did he, outwardly at least, ever break the treaty he had so reluctantly made. In more than one subsequent Indian outbreak he was suspected of having stirred up the local braves to revolt; but nothing could be proven against him.

And so he lived on, at government expense, without a shadow of his former greatness, becoming at last blind, deaf and almost childlike.

POINCARÉ'S VISIT "COMING OUT" PARTY

Prince of Wales.

The recent visit of President Poincaré of France to England served as a sort of "coming out" party for the Prince of Wales. It was the first important representative function in which the prince has participated.

The accompanying picture is the prince's latest, and shows him in the full uniform of a Lieutenant of the royal navy. In this costume he met the French President.

Instinct Above Intelligence.

A boy was asked to explain the difference between animal instinct and human intelligence. "If we had instinct," he said, "we should know everything we needed to know without learning it, but we've got reason, and so we have to study ourselves most blind or be a fool."

The trip will occupy two weeks and will extend as far north as Frenchman's Bay, Maine.

KIPLING LAUREATE. IS QUEEN'S CHOICE

Rudyard Kipling.

The question of who will succeed Alfred Austin as poet laureate is just now a very interesting one in England. Queen Mary favors Rudyard Kipling, and so does King George. The Unionist party undoubtedly would support his candidacy, but Premier Asquith holds the general Liberal view that Kipling is too pronounced a partisan for the office.

BITTER FIGHT BEING WAGED IN LOS ANGELES OVER CUSTODY OF 2-YEAR-OLD BABE WHOSE FATHER WAS LOST IN TITANIC WRECK

A bitter fight is on in the courts of Los Angeles over the custody of little J. Ross Clark, two-year-old survivor of the Titanic disaster. The baby and his parents were on the White Star liner that went to the bottom of the Atlantic last April. The father was lost; the mother was rescued.

She returned to her home in Los Angeles. Her husband's father, J. Ross Clark, was granted guardianship of the child's estate, with the consent of the mother.

On the first of September Mrs. Clark went to New York on a visit, leaving the baby with her mother. She was met in New York by Jack Tanner, handsome young club man formerly of Los Angeles. The couple were married and went to Paris.

When the news of the marriage reached J. Ross Clark, the millionaire grandfather of the babe, he at once set out to secure personal guardianship of the child. On October 8 guardianship papers were granted him in Los Angeles, the court holding that the mother had abandoned the child.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tanner returned and at once commenced proceedings in the courts to recover the child. A bitter fight is now in progress.

EX-KING MANUEL SHOWS FORESIGHT; YEARNS FOR THRONE AND FIANCEE'S RICH PA WOULD PAY WELL TO MAKE HER A QUEEN

In picking out Princess Augustine Victoria of the Catholic branch of the German house of Hohenzollern as his bride-to-be, ex-King Manuel of Portugal showed unusual foresight. The ex-king, who has been without a job since Portugal became a republic, would like to recover the throne. This can't be done without a good deal of money, if at all. Prince William, the bride-to-be's father, is a very rich man and is willing to pay well to make his daughter a queen.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We live in a neighborhood with all good, kind people except one family with one child about ten years old. We all have small children around here. This family put their child up to mistreat mine and also to try to get the other women to do the same. Now I went to the grandma, like a lady, but she seems to think I ought to have enough work to do not to notice this. They have often made up lies and told the other neighbors, but in time they got out and we was right. You see, they are getting the grown people on the outs.

We own our home and can't very well move and they own nothing. If these women would only take their spite out on me, I would not feel so bad. I have put up with this for three years and I can't see how I will stand it much longer. I don't know what it is they have against me. I keep my children as nice as any one and I am sure that all the other boys are good children. We never had trouble with these people, and I am just heartsick to see them mistreat my babies—my oldest is six

A READET.

If your children are being mistreated, notify the nearest society or juvenile court; either one will put a stop to such abuse. But I would advise you to keep your children close to you and not allow this other child to come near them.

Since the other people do not own their home, they may not stay there much longer. As for telling lies—this is always discovered and it is seldom that a person can get away done by people who lie about and

Free Prescription That Can Be Prepared At Home.

Camille de Verlac, famous for the beauty of her hands and arms, in a recent number gave the following woman-knew about the prescription that has caused all this talk about my hands and arms they could make their hands and arms just as beautiful as mine. I am glad to have the opportunity to give you a free trial of the world. It will help every woman to improve her personal appearance." When I asked her if she would allow me to publish the prescription, she quickly answered: "Certainly, only to let me have you do it." Turning to a desk she wrote it on a slip of paper and handed it to me. Here it is: "Go to any drug store, get a one-ounce bottle of Kulux compound. Pour the contents into a two-ounce bottle, add a quarter ounce of water, then fill with water. Apply night and morning. This prescription gives the skin a velvety softness and obliterates all defects such as freckles, tan, sun spots, and all other rudeness. A single application works a marvelous transformation." It can be applied to the neck and shoulders with equally gratifying results. It is absolutely harmless and will positively not stick to the hair, or get in the hair. It is deliciously cool and soothing, and is not affected by perspiration. It will not rub off. Advertisement.

DRASTIC ELECTION LAW NOW IN FORCE

Few Citizens Can Qualify for Municipal Office Under Its Terms—Scope Comprehensive.

That a large portion of Wisconsin's otherwise-eligible citizenship hereafter is to be barred from holding public office is revealed in a bill recently passed by the legislature and signed by the governor.

The law, which was presented in the senate some time late in May, was signed by Governor McDevore several days ago. The measure has for its object the preventing of any person interested in a municipal contract from holding office, but in attempting this the measure is most drastic.

The bill provides not only that no person who is interested in a city contract shall be allowed to hold municipal office, but furthermore that no person who is an employee or agent of a corporation holding such a contract, or furnishing labor or material for such a contract, shall be allowed to serve a municipality.

For instance, any Madison resident, for instance, who has an understanding of business connections and ramifications will quickly discover if he will not pass before his mind's eye a list of possible candidates for municipal office, that there are but few that can pass muster with clear skirts in the face of this law.

As pretty nearly every business in Madison or any other city at one time or another furnishes goods for municipal use it can easily be seen that under a strict construction of the law anyone connected with such a business will in the future be barred from office. But besides making persons who are agents and employees of "corporations, firms or individuals" ineligible to hold office, the bill goes further and provides that persons violating the law shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to heavy penalty for the violation. What is more, the law is effective on and after its publication, and is at this moment in force.

Persons holding office contrary to its provisions are liable under its terms.

Fairly Sizzles.
The drastic terms of the new law can be seen from the text which follows:

"Any city officer shall be interested, directly or indirectly, in any improvement or contract to which the city is a party, or have any direct or indirect interest in or be an agent, employee, or representative of any individual, firm, or corporation, or furnish any materials or labor for such improvement or contract, and whenever it shall appear that such is the case, such officer shall be absolutely null and void and the city shall incur no liability whatever thereon.

"No city officer shall be accepted as surety on any bond, contract or other obligation made to the city.

"Any city officer who violates any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, besides the costs, or by imprisonment in the county jail, not to exceed one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, and shall forfeit his office and be permanently disqualified from holding any office that exists under the laws of this state."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

HOME

(By Howard L. Rann)

The home is the only place on earth where man can let his better nature shine forth by breaking up the bedroom furniture without being arrested. It is also the only spot where eternal and long-delayed justice rounds up the unrepentant husbands who always have money enough to draw out a time for porter-house steak.

It has been said that where love reigns there is no war. This is true, but love in a home without a fire-weekly shave, an occasional change of pillow shams and a three square meal a day soon turns sour and droops toward the divorce docket.

The man who wants to be lord in his own home will pay less attention to love and more to keeping his trousers creased and his necktie larder stocked up. Sometimes women who marry to get a home find out that love which never patronizes the laundry is a poor exchange for free house rent and a buggy ride on Decoration day.

There are a whole lot of things that can be used to better advantage in the home than love. Courtesy is one of them. The man who lets his wife drag a 40-pound hair mattress down the back stairs, preparatory to tucking it up with a carpet beater, while he takes the much-needed rest and figures out Ty Cobb's batting average, need not be surprised if she turns from the love lyrics of Ella Wheeler Wilcox to the consoling influence of the darning egg.

Likewise, the woman who insists upon converting her chambermaid into a butterfingered chambermaid and hooking him up to a dish towel three times a day, while she flutters around a wire dress form and tries to get 34 inches of chest into 30 inches of cloth, ought not to be horrified if he refuses to carry a banner in the suffrage parade.

The home is all right when it consists of two people who repeat the golden rule backward for times before starting something. Married people who would rather go to a dinner than pick a fuss never have any trouble in keeping the dove of peace within easy reach.

COOKSVILLE

Cooksville, July 8.—Mr. and Mrs. A. Whaley entertained the following guests the Fourth: Mr. and Mrs. Van Wormer, Walter Speer and family of Cooksville, Mr. and Mrs. A. ## LECTURERS TO LIVE IN OPEN ON TOURS

Health Evangelists Tour State on Motorcycle and Sleep Out of Doors.

A campaign, which for uniqueness and originality as well as effectiveness surpasses anything of its kind yet attempted, is being inaugurated by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association for taking the gospel of sanitation and health to the rural population of the state. During the summer lectures will be given in the smallest villages and country cross roads and the state placarded with signs calling attention to important rules of right living.

The Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association is the first organization of its kind in the United States to solve the problem of reaching the rural citizens. There is as much consumption, per capita of population, in the country as the city, and a great deal more ignorance concerning it. Formerly the expense of reaching any considerable number of people in the country made the work prohibitive, but an experiment made last summer demonstrated that by the use of a motorcycle almost as many people can be reached in a day as are ordinarily reached in the city.

The summer crusade has been made possible by a gift of two motorcycles from a generous supporter of the work. One machine is used in campaigning county boards. Two workers, a lecturer and his assistant, will cover the state on the other. They carry not only their literature and a stereopticon with certain for out-of-door illustrated lectures, but also a camping equipment for sleeping out and getting their own meals.

Early morning talks at a creamery and addresses to the noon crowd at the village postoffice are features of the rural work. While the lecturer is engaged in the evening, the assistant works in the surrounding country, tacking up health signs and telling the people he meets on the road of the evening lecture. In the all talks will give in rural schools.

The campaign is conducted by Mr. Theodore Werle, lecturer of the association, with an assistant, Mr. William White of Milwaukee and will be continued until late in November.

DIPLOMAS and DIPLOMACY

Copyright 1913 by B. H. HANFORD

"My dears!" cried Mrs. Pearson, as she responded to the bell. "This is a pleasant surprise."

It was a surprise to which she must have been growing accustomed, for Elizabeth and I—bachelor maidens, and fiercely independent as became our state—still craved the companionship of an older, wiser woman and the magic of a home. We found them all at the Pearson's, and we spent our disengaged Sundays and generally an evening or so a week in the haven of serenity which they had contrived by filling the drawing-room and the dining-room of their flat with low chairs, deep and soft; a flood of pillows; a few divans; a passé piano; some prints; some lamps, and the warmest, kindest, most genuine hospitality to be found within a ten-mile radius of the campus. There was no surer help in times of trouble; no heartier congratulations in times of joy; no steadier friendship than the Pearsons gave to such of us as were so fortunate as to know them. Trouble and responsibility seemed to touch them only through their friends, yet I knew, and so did Elizabeth, that it was a hazardous and spirit-wearing task to maintain two small children and an open house upon the salary attached to an assistant professorship.

"I think," she went on, as she closed the door and led us into the tobacco-clouded living room, "that you ought to know everybody here. They're all college people. I'm not speaking of Billy Blight," she amended, "as the tall figure of that young man, with a twin Pearson clinging to each leg, arose to salute us. 'You ought not to know him, of course, but I'm afraid you do.'"

"What's he been doing?" asked Elizabeth, when we had greeted the other members of the party and taken our places upon a big divan.

"He's abused our hospitality," Mrs. Pearson answered. "You know how we've given him the freedom of our new house, the 'Castle in Spain.' How we've let him wander about from room to room and look out of all the windows. You know how I even promised to let him paint frescoes on the nursery walls."

"Good, safe place that," laughed Marthana Carroth. "The babies are too young to say what they think."

"But I must protest," said Professor Berger, a dear old chap from Jena who had come to study American institutions, and whom "Prexy" had shifted to Pearson's care for the afternoon. "It is important to the vitality that the young eye of the child shall not be distorted by."

"Of course, of course," agreed all of us who retained the power of speech.

Pearson, did his young guest the justice and the honor to say: "Young Blight has won more medals and created more beauty than many an artist twice his age."

"But that does not excuse him," Mrs. Pearson interrupted. "His art may be good, but his manners are atrocious. You know, dears," she went on, "how I've let him play billiards in the billiard room and read in the library."

We assured her that we did know. Billy had enjoyed, even as Elizabeth and I had, free range of the blue prints from the architect's plans for the Pearson's proposed house at West Farms. Mrs. Pearson got the plans and spread them for our inspection. "See what he's done!" she cried dramatically.

"Oh! that is too bad of him," cried Elizabeth. "Marthana, Mr. Rollins, do come and see what Billy Blight's done to the very best bedroom in the house."

We gathered round her, and there we read across the fair space of the room over the library: "Reserved for the exclusive use of William Blight, Esquire."

"Oh, really, Billy, that is too bad of you," I cried. "That's the room I fixed on for myself."

"And I," said Elizabeth.

"And I," echoed Marthana.

"And we," said Mrs. Pearson.

"That's right; butting in, all of you," growled Billy. "No privacy, even in a chap's own room. I'll not visit you at all. The inhospitality and the selfishness with which I have been treated this day are the last two straws."

At that John came in. John is John Wentworth, Professor of Philosophy at our college, and my promised husband. He is younger than Mr. Pearson, but the two are great friends, and I think that it is partly on this account that Mrs. Pearson is so good to me. She knows that I shall some day be a faculty wife, and she already treats me with the confidence and friendship which characterize most of the men and women who supply the mental grist to our mill. They are nearly all young; they are all ambitious; and they are more independent than such a body generally is because "Prexy" is so much away from the college. He is our publicity man—every institution in these days must have one—and he is always off lecturing, attending conferences, serving on commissions, getting up new trustees or endowments. This leaves the ordinary, day-by-day, administration of affairs in the hands of the other professors and brings them into frequent and intimate association with one another.

So when John had smoked a quiet pipe and entertained our Germanic friend for half an hour, it seemed quite natural that Mr. Pearson and he should retreat to a tiny room, called by courtesy the study, in which our host kept a few books and bones. Pearson's specialty was zoölogy. Presently Mrs. Pearson and I were summoned to join them, and Professor Berger was left to be amused and mystified by the youngsters.

"Dear friends," said Mrs. Pearson, when the door was closed. "We have such news. You know how long we've had those plans and yet how far we seemed from laying the corner-stone, so to speak."

"Of course they do, dear," Pearson interrupted. "Don't they know we've always spoken of it as the 'Castle in Spain'?"

"Bless it," cried the future chatelaine.

"Well," continued Pearson, and his earnest face and a little break in his voice made the words beautiful to us who were so fond of him, "I see my way clear at last, and I've signed the contract. I'm to pay for the castle in two years. If we're careful—"

"Oh! we shall be careful," cried his wife. "We may own it all in eighteen months."

Of course we congratulated them jubilantly, and Pearson went on:

"It's all on account of that course of zoölogy which the president is listed to conduct. I'm to have that next year. He spoke of it last week. That will raise me to a full professorship. My salary will increase by $2,000. I shall be the head of the science department, and just about the proudest and happiest fellow between here and Timbuctoo."

Again we tumultuously congratulated him.

"And it isn't only that," he went on, "not only the money, though God knows that will be welcome enough; not the house, though that will be precious enough; not the position, though that will be fine enough. But it's the work. The chance. A great big chance to do great big work. I'll make the department a wonder. I'll make the chaps in other universities—aye, and in other countries, like that Berger there—I'll make 'em sit up and take notice. And the students I'll turn out!"

"No, Robert," cried his wife, taking his hand in hers, "you'll never turn out any students at all. You'll get so attached to them and so interested in them, and they'll get so devoted to you that you'll all stay there together, one great happy family dabbled in the internal workings of the animal kingdom. What makes you look so serious, Marlan?" she asked suddenly, turning to me. "What's the matter, child?"

"I'm thinking how I should love to be there," I answered. "But I was born too soon. I'm a senior you know, and all these plans are for next year when I shan't be there. And we're having such an awful time. 'Prexy' away and the most horrible substitute doing the work."

They all knew that we suffered under Dr. Archibald. He was unquestionably learned, but he was no less unquestionably incapable of imparting his learning. His lectures came late in the afternoon of Monday, Thursday and Friday—a bad time for even a proficient instructor, but fatal to a bad one. Every one was always tired, and weariness, acting on our natures in different ways, reduced the senior class to a mixture of irritability, frivolity, physical exhaustion, indifference and animosity. Dr. Archibald's platitudinous statements fell upon this remarkably bad ground and bore fruit sometimes in an inattentive lassitude, contagious, overwhelming and impene- trable, and sometimes in acrimonious criticism or retort leading to general uproar.

Now, neither Elizabeth nor I cared very much whether we made our debut in the world learned or unlearned in zoölogy. We were students in the art department, and the course was prescribed for us as a sort of groundwork in general structure and anatomy. We never expected to teach the thing, and to us our marks in it, whether for themes or even for the final examination looming toward us at the end of the year, mattered very little. But the case of the majority of the students was very different. They expected, most of them, to fill positions as superintendents, principals, teachers, and even professors, and possibly their diplomas—but surely their ability to pass a creditable general examination would be influenced by their knowledge or ignorance of the natural sciences. All these things they thought about while Archibald read to us his musty lectures, and laid waste four and a half precious hours a week.

Things were at this pass when a peripatetic lecturer named Thornycroft bloomed out one day on the bulletin board with announcements of an extension lecture on "Embryonic Traits." It was one of those popular illuminated and illuminating things which the board of trustees arranged for us from time to time. "Prexy" returned from a two months' absence just in time to preside, and the thing was a great success.

It was one of a course of three to be delivered at varying intervals, and it dawned upon one of the interloping "bods" to write "Prexy" a petition to engage Thornycroft to take our zoölogy class for the rest of the year. There was no definite criticism of Archibald, but the implication was there: We were all delighted at the prospect; we all signed the petition and awaited results. "Prexy" had always been strong on public sentiment and "the pulse of the student body." He used to harangue the other men about the authority of vox populi. He, who never stayed with us long enough to hear it.

It was two or three weeks after this that the routine of our daily lives was upset by John's arrival in the afternoon, while Elizabeth and I were wrestling with the "Life and Times of Leonardo da Vinci." John hardly ever came to see me in the afternoon, and his face, as Margaret ushered him into the little drawing-room, was so grave that Elizabeth prepared to beat a retreat.

"I want to talk to you both," he began, when we had established him in the Morris chair. "I have sent for Billy Blight; he'll be here presently. There's something very serious in the air."

"Has Billy broken out again?" I questioned. John shook his head.

"More serious, far," he answered, and just at that moment Billy's boots resounded in our hall.

"What's up?" he questioned, with instant concern when he saw our gravity.

"I'm afraid Pearson's chance is up," John answered. "I've seen it coming on for two or three weeks—ever since 'Prexy' came back. But now I'm afraid it's certain."

"His chance?" repeated Elizabeth.

"I mean his promotion—his increase—everything. I'm going to tell you three—two of you the wildest youngsters in the college, and the third the wisest and dearest—a grave faculty secret. My reason is that we four are perhaps the best friends the Pearsons have, and they'll be needing friendship, I'm afraid. You know about that petition to the president. Well, he acted upon it, and Thornycroft has consented on condition that he be given full professorship next year and be made head of the science department. Now Pearson has never had a definite agreement with the president or the trustees. He was acting entirely on his own responsibility when he made so sure of it. There is no reason under the sun why Thornycroft's proposition should not be accepted. He is better known than Pearson. His titles will read well in the catalogue."

"But haven't you," I asked, "all of you who appreciate Mr. Pearson, haven't you remonstrated with 'Prexy'?"

"He ought to have his face pushed," contributed Billy.

"Surely, surely," answered John. "We've said all that's possible, but the president, when he is riding his vox populi, vox dei hobby is not amenable to arguments. It looks very much as if the thing would go through."

"And the 'Castle in Spain,'" wailed Elizabeth. "The darling 'Castle in Spain.'"

"Will stay in Spain, I fear," said John, as he rose and put on his overcoat. "I must get back to a lecture. It's not the first time the vox populi has incited murder."

For some time after John left us Elizabeth, Billy and I sat in despair. We were sitting dejectedly over the tea and cake which Margaret's hospitality had provided when there entered the one person in the world whom we were least prepared to face.

"Mrs. Pearson, Miss Marlan," Margaret announced, and before we could gather our scattered wits she was looking at us out of her friendly, unsuspecting eyes, and seating herself, cozily assured of welcome.

"It is luck finding you here," she assured Billy. "I was going to write you a line to-night. For you three dear children—John, of course, Marlan—must come to Spain on Saturday week for the laying of the corner-stone. The 'castle' is actually going up."

"My God," murmured Billy.

"Stop your profanity, sir," she chided. "I can't imagine what your parents or guardians were thinking of to let you acquire it."

My throat was actually stiff, but in the dusk I managed to squeeze it and to force myself into some kind of articulation. "Of course we'll all be in Spain when the corner-stone is laid," I mumbled.

"You've got a cold, dear," she broke in, promptly. "I'll have a word or two with Margaret about you as I go out. You know I hate to think of any of the students being sick here in town. That's going to be one of my great joys in the 'castle.' I shall always have a convalescent or two sitting out over the portcullis and getting well in the sunshine. The month will be full of formaldehyde. A yellow flag shall float over the battlements; the drawbridge will be always up and the iron-studded oak doors covered thick with scarlet-fever plasters."

Elizabeth achieved something which in the darkness passed for a laugh.

"And now I'm going. I just dropped in to make sure of you for the corner stone. The babies will be wondering where I am. And if Robert reached home and found no one to greet him but Maria I verily believe he'd go away again and think he didn't live there at all."

Presently she was gone, and we were left together at the mercy of our nerves and our imaginations until Billy Blight broke out with: "I can stand anything but darkness. Let's have a light on this thing," and with the light he found that both Elizabeth and I were crying.

I think Margaret fed us. I think Billy stayed to dinner. I think we all talked a little in queer, trailing spurts, but I don't remember anything very distinctly until Billy rose to go away.

"And hang it all," he cried, as the personal application occurred to him for the first time, "that boulder of a Thornycroft will work us all to death. How are we going to do in twelve weeks the work that ought to have been spread over nine months. And if we don't make up the stuff he'll throw us all down on the exam. And we'll all be back here next year looking at the dear old Pearsons and knowing that we—for didn't we sign that petition—have shut them out of Spain. Oh, lord!"

I had read of sleepless nights, but I don't think I ever experienced one till then. Hour after hour I revolved the dilemma and studied all of its horrid horns. There seemed nothing to do; absolutely nothing. And yet I was on fire to help my friends and to show John that I could be trusted not only as a safe confidant, but as a resourceful ally. It was six o'clock, and the gray morning was looking in through the windows when at last I hit upon a plan and pattered in to awake Elizabeth and discuss it with her.

"Now, what I thought is this," I began, as I pulled her elder-down about my shoulders; "we'll just frighten these 'eds' away from Thornycroft and back to poor old Archibald."

"But how?" she questioned.

"I got the idea from Billy Blight. You remember what he said, just before he went, about all the extra work and time which the change would involve and the likelihood of our losing our diplomas in the end. Billy generally talks nonsense, but he was as sensible as a judge then. If we can once get the men students—and the majority of women students too, for that matter—to see this aspect of the case, I think you'll see them flocking back to 'Prexy' and declaring themselves quite satisfied with poor old Archibald, who, even if he does not teach us very much, certainly makes no unreasonable demands upon our time, and, just as certainly, will give us all an easy exam, and good marks at the end."

"You're a darling and a genius," cried Elizabeth.

"You three dear Children must come to Spain on Saturday Week for the Laying of the Corner-stone."

"It shall be done. We'll make 'em cry for Archibald before the week's over. Now let's sleep a little; it isn't quite time to get up."

When public opinion sets strongly in one direction it is no easy thing for three youngsters, however strong their enthusiasm, to turn it round again. And we had to be very careful. It would never have done to show hostility. We were just plaintively natural; aware of our mental inferiority, crushed by it, but resigned to it.

"Oh, yes, of course," Elizabeth would sweetly agree, when some enthusiastic "ed" was singing Thornycroft's praises. "Of course it's all very well for you. You're clever, but I know I shall not get my diploma this year. I've heard something of Professor Thornycroft's plans." Oh, subtle, sly Elizabeth! "He's going to rush us through the whole subject in the next eleven weeks. Then we're to have one week for review, and a comprehensive examination to finish off with. It will finish me—dead. There'll be no diploma for me this year. Ah, well, another year seems long, but it will pass."

That was all very well for Elizabeth Alford; young, independent, and with no responsibilities in the world. Her being at college at all was a whim of hers. Her leaving without a diploma and degree, or her staying to work another year for them were matters of pleasure or convenience with her—no more. But to the men, post-graduates for the most part, with their way to make in the not too affluent world of teaching, the prospect of another year without appointment and salary was a serious thing.

"And I don't think," Elizabeth would add, "that poor old Dr. Archibald is bad enough to make all this necessary. It would be a terrible thing for him to be dismissed like this in the middle of the semester. Ayl hasn't it seemed to you," she would add, with the prettiest air of deference, "that his lectures are getting a little better? Of course, I'm no judge. I'm very ignorant. But don't you think that he is getting in a little more subject matter?"

And the "ed" would be forced to agree. Billy, in a last desperate attempt to steer us all to Spain, had invited Archibald and Pearson to dine with him and had gently started Pearson on his pet theories. It was impossible for anyone to listen to him unmoved and unlightened, and Archibald absorbed clarity and power enough to transfigure his two or three succeeding lectures. We worked quietly, but hard. And gradually the leaders in the movement to oust Archibald found themselves with few followers. Faculty meetings generally took place on Thursday, and on the Thursday preceding the Saturday fixed for the laying of the corner-stone John again surprised me by calling in the afternoon.

"I haven't a moment to stay," he explained. "I've just come to tell you of a most extraordinary thing. Nearly all the men and several of the women who signed poor Pearson's depth warrant have gone to the president and asked him to reconsider any idea of change in the science department."

"Vox populi changing its tune," said I, preparing to confess to the conspiracy and my part in it, when Elizabeth and Billy Blight, crowned with almost visible laurels, broke in upon us. Billy grasped John's hand and shook it warmly, while Elizabeth gathered me into her embrace.

"Isn't it wonderful?" they cried in chorus.

"And isn't Marlan wonderful?" Elizabeth added.

"What are you two lunatics talking about?" John demanded, and Elizabeth was so breathless that she allowed Billy to do the talking.

"Thornycroft's down and out. 'Prexy' learns that the feeling of the undergraduate body has changed." Told us so in a nice little speech in his office when I went in with two or three other chaps to speak my little piece. It would have drawn tears to the eyes of a graven image to hear me telling him how we had all learned to love Archibald; how it was only his preliminary lecture that went a little above our heads."

"Marvelous," murmured John, "marvelous and unaccountable."

"And we can go to West Farms on Saturday with easy minds and consciences," cried Elizabeth. "The Pearsons are safe. If the 'castle' were finished now we four might crave its hospitality on account of the brain strain it has caused us. Oh you dear old Marlan!" she cried, and again threw her arms around me while Billy again shook off John's unresisting hand.

"She's a girl in a thousand," Mr. Blight was pleased to assure my fiancé. "She'll make a wife in a million."

"I know it," John acquiesced, "but might I trouble you to explain why you hold her responsible for this change in public opinion?"

"Oh, it's only their nonsense, John dear," I answered. "We've done nothing at all, except to give a few singing lessons to vox populi."

ACTUAL FACTS FROM PERSONAL EXPERIENCE IN ADVERTISING.

THE following letter is self explanatory and demonstrates more clearly than any other argument the fact that big space filled with good arguments about a salable article will pull. What was accomplished through this one advertisement for the Hiawatha Water Company can be done for any other line of business. The Gazette is simply the medium between your business and the greatest number of people in this whole buying territory. It is a business force.

July 1st, 1913

Gazette Printing Co.
Janesville, Wis.
Gentlemen:-

You may perhaps be interested in learning the results obtained from the full page advertisement we ran in the Gazette, issue of June 21st ultimo.

HIAWATHA had not been advertised locally for several years, never before had we manufactured Ginger Ale for local consumption. Our advertisement advised your readers that we were able to make prompt deliveries and furnish HIAWATHA and its products in various sizes.

Within three days we received orders, by letter, personal call and telephone from fifty-four customers. Consider the fact that two competitive concerns make a full line of drinks, including Ginger Ale (very satisfactory drinks too) and that one of them has an established business of many years duration, and we believe you will agree that the Gazette is read by the "buying" public.

We compliment you upon the "quantity and quality" of your paper, the facilities of your job department for the execution of almost any variety of job, folder or booklet work and the courtesy of the managers and superintendents of the various departments.

Very truly yours,
HIAWATHA WATER COMPANY

S

by J. L. Culver, Manager

Since this letter was written, Mr. J. L. Culver, Manager, states that the supply of Hiawatha products is taxed to meet the demand for goods.

The Gazette will be pleased to take up with you in detail the problems of your business and map out a campaign of publicity which will bring increased business and more money to you.
